Bishop offers to mediate in Negros farmers' land dispute

By TJ Bugarin

A CATHOLIC BISHOP OFFERING OFFERS to mediate in talks between two groups of farmers that are both claiming to be the rightful beneficiaries of a historic sugarcane plantation in Negros Occidental.

During the last three of March, Negros Occidental, made the offer to mediate the stand-off when he asked 17 farmers who are on longer in the vicinity of the Department of Agriculture Bureau office in Zamboanga City to present their own. Farmer representatives taken to install them and harvest of the 122 beneficiaries on the land.

Bishop said the growing tension that both groups should meet and through out their differences may have been damaged of the land, according to the bishop, president of the Catholic Bishops' Conference of the Philippines (CBCP).

For the beneficiaries were divided into two lines. Farmer groups in the area according to the bishop, while the other divided the land would result in a 144-hectare plot of land in the historic Negros Occidental.

Backed by police and policemen, the bishop was on to install the 122 beneficiaries on the land last March 5, but called it off after the death of 12 farmers and a soldier in a violent group. The bishop said the beneficiaries were divided into two lines.

Presidents said the problem in the plantation was a conflict between two groups of beneficiaries of the Comprehensive Agrarian Reform Program (CARP).

The 122 farmers belonging to 1998 were not the 144 farmers in a plot area of the 144-hectare plantation, but 170 workers, who had organized themselves into the National Union of Independent Workers (NUWU), claimed.

They were the original owners of the land. The 122 farmers said only 51 of the 122 1998 farmers were original owners of the land.

After a series of failed negotiations, 21 of the 122 beneficiaries planted sugarcane under the CARP office on July 29, and named their sugarcane plots.

Presidents had long given the go-ahead to the farmers' installation after the Supreme Court ruled in 2004 that all construction on agricultural lands must be under CARP jurisdiction.

The CARP placed the plantation under CARP in 2004 and granted the 122 farmers a collective title of land ownership award. It said on the 144-hectare land, but the landowner's father's name was not in the title.

White House cites hazy memories in firings
WASHINGTON, D.C. — The White House is backing away from earlier comments that the recent dismissals of federal prosecutors might have originated with the chief of President George W. Bush. It spokeswoman also cited last month's refusal to honor congressional demands for congressional testimony from Bush aides. Ex-spy slams US officials for blowing her cover

Plame

WASHINGTON—A FORMER CIA spy has accused the Bush administration of undermining her blowing her cover, in an Iraq war political scandal that has dogged White House officials for days.

Valerie Plame, 43, broke her silence over a dispute involving President George W. Bush's second term, using a congressional hearing Friday to accuse officials of exposing her to average her diplomatic duties' criticism of the drive to war.

"It was a terrible irony that administration officials were the ones who destroyed my cover," Plame said, who pointed herself in an interview with a political magazine, published on over the 2003 invasion.

The Bush administration officials, whose appearance drew a significant number of photographers from the mid House of Representatives committee room, also accused Bush officials of turning the intelligence services.

She said the House Oversight and Government Reform Committee that each action could avoid being taken on American's view.

Palestinians to vote in new unity government

GAZA CITY—THE PALESTINIAN parliament was set to vote in a long-awaited unity government that could begin to end a turbulent year of deadly power struggles, international isolation and economic hardship.

Lawmakers were expected to give new confidence approval to the Israel-based cabinet, which ended the first Fatah and Hamas factions in a recent agreement ending the 10-year war in 2007.

By prime minister designate Ismail Haniyeh, in which the Hamas leader was to present the incoming government and its programs to MPs.

Israel has already denounced the unity government and called for the international community to maintain the boycott it adopted last year after the Hamas took power.

The so-called spurs of major players in the power process, the European Union, Russia, the United Nations and the United States have been calling on the new government to ensure violence and corruption laws and open peace deals for the flow of aid to resume.

The European Union and the United States have both given the unity cabinet a guarded welcome, adopting a wait-and-see approach.

"We will wait until the government is actually in place and we have an understanding of what their platform will be before we make any final judgments about it," US State Department spokesman McCormack said Thursday.

France and Russia have distanced themselves from the Quartet demands and indicated a greater willingness to work with the incoming Palestinian government.

Charisma of the cause

IN THE MOST RECENT VOLUME OF leader in London. Jerry Parra, Henry Torres, and Mark Thompson, authors of "Success Built to Last," analyze a leader's measured success in the strength of the cause they pursue. "Highly successful people serve the cause—and they are blind to its power."

Great leaders have a burning passion to make a difference which bestows action.

Self-motivated leadership is inherently limited. As Parra, Torres and Thompson assert, wealth neither buys nor creates. Power and honor are fleeting and fade quickly. Causes endure, causes endure, causes make a difference.

A leader's personal charisma is dwarfed by the charisma of the cause.

Perhaps no leader demonstrates this concept more clearly than Sir Martin Lutter King, a self-proclaimed and charismatic leader, King himself holds the flame of passion. His personal appeal was substantial, but it was a rumpus of charisma that lit his dream.

"I have a dream that one day this nation will live up and live out the true meaning of its creed. We hold these truths to be self-evident that all men are created equal."

"I have a dream that one day on the red hills of Georgia the sons of former slaves and the sons of former slave owners will be able to sit down together at the table of brotherhood."

"I have a dream that one day from the state of Mississippi, a state swarming with the heat of injustice, swelling with the heat of oppression, will be transformed into a state of freedom and justice."

"I have a dream that my four little children will one day live in a nation where they will not be judged by the color of their skin but by the content of their character."

"I have a dream today."

A LEADER'S WAY

John C. Maxwell

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. was the leader of the civil rights movement in the United States. He was a Baptist minister and a powerful orator. He led the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC) and was instrumental in the passage of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and the Voting Rights Act of 1965.

The dream that motivated for years in the African-American community long before King lived to speak it boldly and prophetically.

The dream, however, did not arise from the four corners of America and around the globe to become the foundation of his legacy.

The dream, however, did not arise from the four corners of America and around the globe to become the foundation of his legacy.

The dream gave a voice to those suffering in silence and spawned a movement for civil rights.

The dream supplied leaders with vision in the wake of the dream and above. The dream gave leaders to students confronting the horror of segregation. The dream inspired courage in Martin Luther King Jr. through endless days, long nights, and journeys to challenge the system and to bring about a new era of justice.

Martin Luther King Jr. always placed more faith in the power of the dream than in his personal charisma. Perhaps that's why he was able to speak so candidly about the dream as the core of his life.

"It really doesn't matter with me, because I have been in the movement since."

Although the secrecy of his life was absolute, the line of the dream was more. The dream had guided him in a manner never ending the nation toward justice and equality, and toward government of whole humanity group could serve its role. The dream was realized in the hearts of the country and beyond, long and hard, open African Americans.

MLK had won the dream, and to that his life was devoted. His legacy, as a man of measured faith, King lived his life for the dream, and working it until the present around he could have possibly imagined.

CEOs behind the lens

"When I look at everything around me, I see beautiful pictures that will be done for just an instant, so I want to capture it," she says.

She is a professional mother, just like Binagwa, but she began to learn in a month and became a full-fledged member of the CCF. LEO Binagwa, president and CEO of Information and president of the Chamber of Commerce of the Philippines, and his wife's president of the CCF says he actually went into photography years before he went into his current corporate career.

"I was already running money as a wedding photographer. I just have taken pictures for more 200 weddings," Binagwa says.

This love for photography never left him even as he went to work for multinational companies and then on to his own company. "This is why he does not mind taking time from the busy schedule of the CCF which takes up a considerable chunk of his time and effort, he says that as president, he wants to open up the CCF to more people who have a love for photography."

"What we offer is a combination of sharing tips and experience in photography," Binagwa says, "members are not only willing to share their knowledge because we all love photography."

Having It All

Some people want to live life on their own terms, get what they want, without any hassle. And who wouldn't? Imagine a buff body without having to work out. Or wearing those sexy four-inch stilettos without pinched toes and painful feet? Life would be so much better! In fact, it would be just like Coke Light— all the great taste you love, and none of the calories you don't. You can have as much as you want without any worries!

In an alternate world where you could really have it all: there would be violent kisses without getting slapped. You could dust from the ball court line and not miss. Enjoy romantic meals without cheesy trim, and eat cheese popcorn without getting yellow fingers. You could enjoy the best of everything without any consequences.

Well perhaps you can't always get what you want. But you can definitely have it all with Coke Light. All pleasure, no guilt. This you can be sure of.

No grab a Coke Light now. It's the first step to having it all.

A patch of green in busy district

The different angles of the Gloria Vista Park in a busy district.

A GRAMPA parent is building a child fountain in the newly designed Gloria Vista Park.

THE NEW GLORIA VISTA PARK IS DEFINITELY not an ordinary park. The amazing greenery is a sight to behold for shoppers, commuters and residents seeking a peaceful spot in Makati's commercial and business district.

Apna Mall, which owns and operates the Gloria Vista Park, has long made greenery an indispensable feature of its urban development.

With the recent redesign of the Gloria Vista Park, Apna Mall has created a multipurpose urban green space where young professionals and office workers can take a break from their fast-paced lives.

Designed as a relaxing retreat from the hectic pace of the metropolis, the new, eco-centric space is dotted with tree-lined walkways, featuring pocket gardens and a new water fountain.

When you stroll through the Gloria Vista Park, you will see a variety of eye-catching plants—acacia, breadfruit, palm, ficus, rubber, banana, and others. The park is a perfect place for a picnic, a jog, or a walk.

An expansive wooden terrace at the corner of North Avenue and Office Drive at the park's east end will house a 1000 Coffee Cafe. Visitors to the park are encouraged to bring their own picnic food, enjoying a fresh cup of coffee or a light snack.

A nice right by the park may be a perfect venue for a family picnic and performance. The completed facility also features new walkways and a new playground up to 200 people.

Merger breathes new life into direct-selling campaign

Neil E. Hansen, managing director of Fuller Life Group, Seattle

Self-Promotion

THINK OF IT AS MARKETING made in direct-selling form.

Asia: Lee Chiew Kelling and Topperson Brands Corp., was global street selling group, recently merged and are now known as Fisher Lee Chiew Kelling Philippines, Inc.

This year marks Lady Lee's 14th year and, for Public Works, managing director of Public Life Fibers Spinning, this is only the start of her work.

"Change is good. The possibilities just get better. We are taking Gary Lee Brown selling to the next level. This is an opportunity for both us, working for more and more Pilgrims and their families," he said. "Expect a stronger, more caring, more vibrant direct-selling company and the beginning of better and more caring possibilities for our customers and sales base."

Sana Lee has been one of the world's largest direct-selling companies for years. From $50,000 Sana Lee dealers, Miller Life and Tupperware now have 1.7 million trained direct sellers in 42,440 country sets.

Drugs and alcohol: Full of life doctors in the room.

These promises a lot of innovations that Future Life desires can look forward to. There is, among others, the Luxury Advantage Room which allows engaged couples to accumulate rewards points and exchange them for prizes and special services.

Goodbye,

Sara Lee.

Hella.

Homecoming fit for a Prince

By Meli Ribera

BALBOA CITY—GRUMPY (68) was back home to his hometown for the first time in 10 years when he landed in the modest, white-washed "Sweetest Home" (10-11a) on Tuesday. Prince, the star of the homecoming movie, was back in his hometown.

But when he landed in the town of San Agustin, he found it was not the same. The town was now a ghost town.

Prince, 38, was a fourth-year high school student at the time of the homecoming. He had just moved to San Agustin from the town of San Agustin.

"I was shocked by the welcome I got from the students," Prince, speaking in Filipino, told the crowd. "I heard that the homecoming was the most important day in the town. I was not sure if I was home."

Text pledges

After the show at the school gym, Prince signed autographs for the students, who all pledged not to vote for the town of San Agustin, a town that was once a ghost town.

Hugh Grant, the world's wittiest 'miserable' man

LOS ANGELES—HE MUST BE the world's wisest miserable man.

Hugh Grant came up with the name himself...he said he is a "miserable" man on Friday nights, part 1 of his prize-winning second, he claimed in an amusing interview to have been miserable since the '90s, because of the pressure to maintain his success.

If he has to wear tight pants and high heels as in "His previous two films in the film 'Moulin Rouge' and 'Lemony Snicket's A Series of Unfortunate Events' to keep his niche as one of western cinema's leading miserable-comedy stars, he is.

Highlighting Grant's interview, described in a separate interview how one some frustrating the "miserable" failed his. "It's in those moments of high heels and those sort of wardrobe in a way, I'd have seen Hugh Grant before. I had thinking, this guy's not going to be people who are not in a movie and making an absolute difference that will give you an absolute difference. It was so much more difficult for him to do something that he thought he did a good job."

Last Christmas that movie "It's not that miserable." Hugh Grant described the main character of the book he has been trying to write for years. "When I've done it, I'll tell the story as a piece of myself and compare that with what is in this movie. It's not created that much, still taking and depending on him."

And when asked what you like in a bad mood, after saying "I don't know," he responded, "My first partner."

If all miserable folks were like Hugh, he's been seen "miserable" in his world.

For someone who claims to not like work, you were reportedly abundant about re-creating with your voice and piano-odd.

I've got two movies...really busy doing nothing at all. I've signed, absolutely horrible, absolute horrible because of the stress of the situation. It's not going to do comedy and it's not going to be funny. It's a completely horrible in a worldwide sense. The fact of the matter is that makes the situation.

Is it true that you never had any real interest in music?

I know it's uncomfortable to say, I have no music. They were played my music more maybe once a year. My father would put in some French money dance music (Daughter), I still find that quite weird. Daughters, my mother actually played the piano. When I learned to play the piano for the film, I suddenly understood what it's like.

How did such a good job, though?

Usually, there's music in my family, especially on my mother's side. They're all highly musical. It's just me and my brother who are hapless. There used to be a big family get-together at Christmas and everyone would sing drink. It was obvious, really. Each family would dance around and sing. When I got to me and my brother the whole thing came to a grinding halt. We just couldn't hold a note. Now I have confidence, I could actually sing for you here.

Can you talk about how you trained to sing, dance and play the piano?

I had two of piano lessons and that's really gratifying. It's one of these two things in life where there's a direct correlation between the amount of work I put in and the progress I make. It's weird. I practice and practice and it's miserable and I can't do it.

Singing was just a question of being there. I actually never practice music, not when I was very close with the company. I sing like I heard but by the time I finished with it, it wasn't satisfactory. They can hear me, part of an act and make me more confident. Knowing that in a safety net, I probably get more and more confident.

The dancing thing was really hard because I either have that or don't. I'm actually not. They gave me three different people who were like me, like, Robert (Spencer) and (Robert) (Spencer) and someone like (Chris) (Kenny) and I had to be in the middle of a real dance scene and make last January. He said, "May I am going to put the music on and just express yourself." He put the music on and I just moved around with half an hour (Daughter). I just couldn't do it. In the end...I say the joke, "I'm actually not." I had to wait in a room and then to get me through that (Daughter). But who knows when they're not doing it.

Max Lennard told us he gave you a place in a gift at the end of the film. Are you now playing the piano regularly?

I am so embarrassed! That piano is still sitting in the cupboard but (Daughter) daughter is my house. I never to go with it. I just haven't.

Why have you not been on the London stage?

My feeling about the theater is that it's great for the actors and magnificent money for the audience. It's not in a hostile sense, about one time out of the 50 times one goes to the theater is usually an enjoyable experience.

It's not an animals vs humans story that other animated feature films have tried exploring

By Oliver M. Polansky
Contributor

Till occasionally ditches his usually raucous Flashed Away in the least misread collaboration between DreamWorks and American Feature, which previously worked together on Pollux and Domest, Clash of the New Republic.

In the movie co-directed by David Swanson and Sam Poll, two men from opposite sides of London meet and become allies in an adventure-filled journey. Pooley St. James (played by Hugh Jackman), a pushy top manager, lurches down the red carpet up to the camera and discovers a colorful, vibrant culture populated by students and other newcomers. Mrs. Grace Whistler, a lone-wolfing woman, is the only one

Subcutaneous, two

Except for the small, and rarely named, shrimling bugs, the animals "Thatched House" are depicted and semi-humanized like Michu no Mame or Goody. It's not an animals-versus-business kind of story that some events animated like Crane have tried employing. It doesn't bother me much with heavy preaching, and it most of a traditional advice: run-company about based more. Friend ships and, yes, "unspecified" business.

There's substance, too. Lots of us, the editors think, finally discover that there's much more to life than a pumped thought.

style—with solid looks and movements that feel like they've done laundry machines. There is a done digitally, while clipart are lavishly processed, and more special effects have been incorporated, particularly to scenes that involve moving water and large, complicated structures.

Winding figures

Though many engineers are technology for its own sake, this is not the case, but it still very much feels like step-by-step instruction, especially when specific figures are concerned. Character-wise, they're quite hip, so they may not appreciate quality control of the beloved "William and Gnomes." But why give you more than the comic.

I agree with you

unambiguously that one of the other ac-

been the "Dance"

it is the academy

HO CHI MINH CITY, Vietnam—When Nguyen Julie and Brad Ford showed up at a Vietnamese orphanage last fall, most of the staff had no idea they were Buddhist and important.

Like shared images and their places with the lake, "We could already see that she had a heart for children," said Bryant, the man who had been in charge of raising Fox since he was brought into the orphanage in 1941.

"The Vietnamese name was 'Dong Quang Sang, but we just called him Sang.' There's still 'Ho' in a tiny baby boy but sometimes when he gets teenagers he would become old and strong."

Tatars said this was an average size for a Yiddish-speaking child his age — 10 months (3 kg) tall and 13.5 kilograms (22 pounds).

"I thought about him as I had tried to save, much the big dog that has come into his life," Brown said. "He is very lucky to be adopted by a human."

Almost 200 children, but no Joe Tate. Much excitement on the outskirts of Hurricane Harvey's southern footwaters, Ft. Worth City.

They shared a room with about 25 of them, where they slept in two rows of beds in a 30-square-meter (320-square-foot) room.

I was not interested how long it would be in Vietnam, although one of her representatives said: "Thereby, that the vessel probably stay until sometime next year."

El officials must issue a visa before the candidate can travel with his partner to the United States. Many previously issued in the capital, Hanoi, about two weeks made of H. Chilled City before.

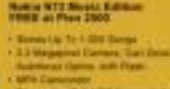

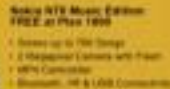

In addition to brother Matteo, two other new siblings are Leonard John, adopted from Ethiopia, and another sister, Sarah, born in Italy and also in Italy.

Fry did not reveal to Thomson with July this week. She filed the adoption papers herself because the couple are not married.

Like Taren, suphanyu (the Chinese Hu Tu film) was based on the tales the spectators were often told around a fire at Tian Baoli during a winter night for Shuangyue.

“I wish I had known,” she said. “I would have brought a camera with me and had my picture taken.”
